https://meettomanage.cloud/ass
BokD81rg.js

JavaScript files appear in many places, including frameworks (like Bootstrap), themes and templates, and third-party plugins.

So you should track down where the culprit (un-minified) JavaScript files come from. For instance, if the un-minified JavaScript lives inside a third party plugin, you can minify it. But when you update the plugin to a new version, the JavaScript files will need to be compressed again.

There are server-side tools (including WordPress plugins) to automatically minify JavaScript files.

Mobile Speed

How fast does your website respond to mobile users?

Test execution failed.

Optimize your images for mobile devices by serving them in modern formats (like WebP) and using responsive image sizes.

Use lazy loading for images and iframes to prevent offscreen content from slowing down initial load time.

Minify CSS and JavaScript files, and defer non-critical JavaScript to reduce rendering delays.

Enable browser caching and consider using a content delivery network

(CDN) to serve assets quickly across different geolocations.

Audit your site using tools like GTmetrix to uncover and address mobile-specific performance issues.

Consider implementing Accelerated Mobile Pages (AMP) if appropriate for your use case.
